

Lilly R

August 19th, 2026

Ivy Experience

Transition Words/Grammar Review

- Conclusion words (whatever follows these words is a conclusion): as a result, so, thus, therefore, hence, ergo, consequently
 - It was raining today; as a result, Jane brought her umbrella to work.
 - It was hot outside; hence, they all went inside.
- Premise words (whatever follows these words is a rationale for the conclusion): since, because
 - Example: Since it was hot outside, they all went inside.
- Contrast transition words: nevertheless, although, even though, however, but, yet, on the other hand, while (not always), whereas
 - She fell down; nevertheless, she got back up.
 - Britney is on the dance team, whereas Jessica is on the basketball team.
 - Although they are friends during school hours, when on the football field, they become fierce competitors.

- Fragment: an incomplete thought; the phrase cannot stand on its own.
 - Examples:
 - They running down the hall.
 - Better: They ran down the hall OR they run down the hall.
 - While he was playing and the rain started.
 - Better: While he was playing, the rain started.

- Run on sentences
 - They went to the park and saw all kinds of animals, there luckily were no bugs.
 - CORRECTIONS
 - They went to the park and saw all kinds of animals; there luckily were no bugs.
 - They went to the park and saw all kinds of animals: there luckily were no bugs.
 - They went to the park and saw all kinds of animals. There luckily were no bugs.

- Agreement transition words: similarly, likewise